NATURE OF RELATIONSHIP

Dr. Bernstein's parent coaching services target improving parenting skills, enhancing relationships between parents and children, teens, and adult children, and establishing routines and habits that produce success at home and at school or other settings. Sessions may also include coaching parents in ways to modify behaviors, avoid emotional overreactions, reduce conflicts, set boundaries, increase compliance, improve communication, develop self-esteem, reduce disrespect, increase responsibility, and improve attitudes. At times, the focus can shift to teaching parents ways to manage their own reactions and responses to their children. For separated and divorced parents, a variety of co-parenting and blended family issues may be addressed as well. The Client understands that the Coaching relationship is in no way to be construed as Psychotherapy, psychological counseling, or as any type of therapy. This coaching relationship is not a substitute for counseling or psychotherapy. In the event the Client feels the need for professional counseling or therapy, it is the responsibility of the Client to seek a licensed professional. Dr. Bernstein will not be giving a diagnosis for the information generated to apply to any special accommodations the child might need at school.
